" Early in 1966 Roman DOBRIANSKI wrote to subject inviting him to visit his relatives in Canada. Although subject was granted a Canadian non immigrant visa considerable difficulty was encountered in obtaining permission from the Soviet authorities to leave the U.S.S.R. In an effort to overcome these difficulties subject sought and obtained the assistance of a neighbour and former school mate, a Mr. SHEWCHUK. Subject referred to SHEWCHUK as a influential member of the Soviet Government. With the assistance of SHEWCHUK, subject was able to obtain permission to leave the U.S.S.R. for a period of two months on the condition that his wife and children would remain behind.
