- 3. A review of the Base's files on the agents listed in Reference A (CATRANSITS-22, -26, -32, -33, -36, -39, and -46) indicates that these agents were considered "inactive" because of no contact. We do not plan to recontact these agents as most of them have been completely out of touch with the Base for at least two years. Individual Agent Service Records and Dropped Agent Cards, of course, will be prepared and forwarded.
- 4. In reviewing individual files in order to comment on the overall security of the Project, we noted that the CATRANSIT-50 file is no longer retained at the Base; please see the CATRANSIT-50 file for comments and conclusions on the security of this case. The only other security flap in the history of the Project is, of course, the CAPERCH-11 case. CAPERCH-11 was arrested on 9 September 1965 while on a routine "censorship test" letter mailing mission in East Berlin. Following her release and debriefing, it was concluded that her arrest was due to a flaw in a RVROCK manufactured alias identity document used for the mission (please see EGBA-83850, 13 March 1967 and EGBA-85842, 1 February 1968, for a complete review and security evaluation of the CAPERCH-11 case). There were no other security problems or flaps associated with the CATRANSIT Project.
- 5. In its lifetime, the Project successfully met its objectives by providing with a number of trained courier assets able to cross into East Berlin to emplace deaddrops, mail letters and perform other operational tasks this at a time when we had no other Berlin-based assets capable of carrying out such tasks. Now that we maintain a group of CABUS couriers large enough to meet our needs, the CATRANSIT assets are no longer needed and the functions of the CATRANSIT Project have been fully assumed by the CABUS Project.
