The Honorary Degree Recipients

Admiral Stansfield Turner

Admiral Stansfield Turner, Director of United States Central Intelligence, received an honorary degree of Doctor of Science in Education.

Admiral Turner, an Annapolis graduate and a Rhodes Scholar, and former President of the Newport Naval War College, began his career with a variety of sea assignments. In 1970, he was selected for promotion to Rear Admiral and shortly thereafter assumed command of a Carrier Task Group of the Sixth Fleet.

In June 1972, Admiral Turner became the 36th President of the Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island, where he instituted major revisions in the college's curriculum to strengthen its academic content.

He became commander of the United States Second Fleet and NATO Striking Fleet Atlantic in 1974, and the following year was named Commander in Chief of Allied Forces Southern Europe (AFSOUTH) and elevated to the rank of Admiral.

In presenting his citation, Gertrude Meth Hochberg, Vice President for Public Affairs stated, "Your active participation in the Rhode Island Council of Higher Education and your symbiotic relationship to Bryant and its MBA program at Newport, from which many of your officers were graduated, brings you closer to this campus and to the people of our State. . . . You have exhibited the superb interconnection of the educational process with the military establishment."

Governor Ella Grasso

The Honorable Ella Grasso, Governor of the State of Connecticut, received an honorary degree of Doctor of Science in Business Administration.

Ella Grasso began her career in elective office shortly after graduating Phi Beta Kappa and with honors from Holyoke College. Twice elected to the Connecticut General Assembly, she rose to the position of Secretary of State in 1959 and remained in that office for twelve years. Mrs. Grasso served as a United States Representative to the 92nd and 93rd Congress and was the first U. S. House of Representatives' member of the Federal Council on the Arts and Humanities.

On January 8, 1975, Ella Grasso assumed office as Connecticut's 83rd Governor. She is a founding member of the Coalition of Northeastern Governors, and in 1977, was elected Chairperson of the New England Governors' Conference and State Cochair-person of the New England Regional Commission.

The President of Italy conferred upon Mrs. Grasso the rank of Knight in the Order of Merit of the Italian Republic. In 1977 she was named Citizen of the Year by the Hartford Business and Professional Women's Club. Governor Grasso is also the recipient of the 'Amita Award' in recognition of her splendid service as a dedicated and responsible citizen. . . .

Her citation reads, in part, "A champion of the people, a woman of dynamic authority, you are tireless in your pursuit of equality for all Americans."

Demetrios Haseotes

Demetrios Haseotes, founder of Cumberland Farms Dairy, Inc., the second largest convenience store chain in the nation, received an honorary degree of Doctor of Science in Business Administration.

A graduate of Cumberland High School, "Jim" Haseotes and his brothers first began helping their father deliver milk house-to-house from their small farm in Cumberland, Rhode Island in 1939. By 1956, realizing the need for cash-and-carry neighborhood stores, Jim Haseotes opened the first retail outlet selling milk, ice cream and other dairy products in Bellingham, Massachusetts. It proved so successful that additional units were opened, and in 1962, the present concept was realized with the addition of other convenience foods.

Jim Haseotes, presently Chief Executive of Cumberland Farms, Canton, Massachusetts, now operates over 1,000 convenience food stores throughout New England, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New York and Florida.

Active in church and community affairs, Mr. Haseotes is a Trustee of the Greek Orthodox Church of America, Diocese of New England, located in Pawtucket, Rhode Island. He is a former Trustee of the National Convenience Stores Association, and a Mason.

Reverend Thomas R. Peterson, O. P.

A graduate of Providence College in 1951, Father Peterson was ordained to the priesthood in the Dominican Order in 1956. He received his Licentiate and Doctorate in Sacred Theology from the Immaculate Conception College in Washington, D.C. and his Ph. D. from Aquinas Institute in River Forest, Illinois.

In 1957, Father Peterson joined the Philosophy Department at Providence College. Five years later he was named Assistant Dean, and in 1968 he became Dean of the College. Father Peterson assumed the presidency of Providence College in July 1971.

Long active in community affairs, Father Peterson is a member of the Board of Trustees of Aquinas College and of Fenwick High School in Oak Park, Illinois. Locally, he is a Board member of the United Way of Southeastern New England, the Executive Committee of the Rhode Island Committee for the Humanities, and the Boy Scouts of America. Father Peterson is also a member of the Corporation of Butler Hospital, First Vice President of the Urban League, and a Board member of the Columbus National Bank, the Providence Chamber of Commerce and Meeting Street School. He also serves as Chairman of the Rhode Island Higher Education Council.

At the commencement ceremony, Father Peterson was cited, in part, "for your prudent leadership of Providence College and your spiritual commitment to the betterment of our community."

Charles J. Wielgus

Charles J. Wielgus, Senior Vice President, Dun & Bradstreet Companies, Inc., received an honorary degree of Doctor of Science in Business Administration.

A member of the class of 1947, Charles Wielgus received his degree of Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, summa cum laude. Described in the yearbook as "a man who is not afraid to 'get out in front' and show the way by work and ideas," he was also recipient of the Graduation Award for "Leadership and Scholastic Ability." In 1965, Mr. Wielgus was named "Alumnus of the Year."

Mr. Wielgus began his business career with the Bigelow Sanford Company before joining, in 1956, the Reuben H. Donnelley Corporation, a subsidiary of Dun & Bradstreet Companies, Inc., where he advanced to the Vice Presidency in charge of Organization Development, Employee and Public Relations in 1969.

Charles Wielgus became the Vice President, Personnel of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., also a subsidiary of Dun & Bradstreet Companies, Inc., in 1971. Two years later he was named Vice President, Personnel, Dun & Bradstreet Companies until his present appointment as Senior Vice President in 1976. This group of companies, employing approximately 25,000 people, consists of a myriad of important companies in this country and overseas.

Active in New York State politics, Mr. Wielgus also directed the United Fund of Westchester. For ten years he was a Director of the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Westchester and a Trustee of Operation Hope, Inc.

Presiding Justice Joseph R. Weisberger

Joseph R. Weisberger, Presiding Justice, Rhode Island Superior Court received an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

A 1942 graduate of Brown University, Magna Cum Laude, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, Justice Weisberger served in the United States Navy from 1941 to 1946. He received his J. D. degree from Harvard University in 1949.

Appointed to the Rhode Island Superior Court February 17, 1956, Judge Weisberger was made Presiding Justice of Rhode Island Superior Court on September 8, 1972.

He is a member of the Rhode Island Bar Association, the American Bar Association, the Judicature Society, and the Institute of Judicial Administration. Currently Chairman-elect of the National Conference of State Trial Judges, Judge Weisberger is also a member of the Board of Governors, American Judges Association, and Rhode Island Correspondent, Selden Society of Great Britain.

In making the citation to Justice Weisberger, Bryant Vice President for Public Affairs, Gertrude Meth Hochberg, declared, ". . . your life provides eloquent testimony to the fact that you are a man with a vision of a good society and the determination to carry it out." The degree was bestowed upon Judge Weisberger "for ceaseless labor in the humane application of the law and the meting out of justice, for a life of service to the community and the less fortunate."

Commencement Address

by Admiral Turner

Reminding graduates that they were fortunate to be finishing their programs in the mid-70's, instead of the turbulent 60's, set the tone for the Admiral's message. He called the United States "the largest and most important public organization in the world," and urged graduates to get involved in government, taking a keen interest in its affairs.

The Admiral, with 31 years of government service, urged those with talent the government can use "to offer it for at least a part of your working life; in so offering you will be making a contribution to the continued strength of our country and all the wonderful things for which it stands."

"If you think about government service today you will be one of many bright young people whom I see around the White House, the Halls of Congress, the Pentagon, the CIA, and elsewhere. The place is teeming with people of your age and just a little older."

During his speech, Turner barely mentioned the CIA. He suggested that this year's class was luckier than those that went to school in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

"While your predecessors were understandably and justifiably concerned with the social and political wrongs they saw around them," he said, "in some measure they became the victims of their own causes."

"In their day participation in causes was viewed as either black or white. You were either for them or against them. If you were a moderate you were copping out. The pressure on college students to choose sides was intense, and the pressure to choose the side against the amorphous mass known as the government was intense indeed."

The Admiral said this year's graduates, having avoided those "unnatural pressures," can now "go forward with a more objective outlook and conduct and objective scrutiny of the activities of government for the rest of their lives."

According to Phil Graf, CMD Director, "Council members will be presented with a unique opportunity to have a direct impact on management education curriculum and will provide business and industry with a better understanding of the needs, problems, and opportunities of each." The Council held its first meeting on June 1, 1977.

The Patriots Return

President William T. O'Hara has announced that the New England Patriots have entered into a two-year agreement with the College to use the Bryant campus for its summer training camp. This year the camp will begin on July 18, and Bryant alumni and their families are cordially invited to watch the team prepare for what promises to be a championship season.

Benjamin Armstrong Shines At Bryant

Ninety-seven years young, and looking forward to Bryant '78, Benjamin Armstrong '03 participated in all the activities of this year's festivities, including a waltz around the floor with Alumni and Development Assistant Director, Shirley Barden, during the Annual Dinner Dance. Ben flew in for the weekend from Walnut Creek, California. Bryant's oldest known living alumnus made Bryant '77 a memorable weekend!

Gertrude Meth Hochberg, retiring Vice President of Bryant College, was feted on Tuesday, June 21, 1977, in the Salmanson Dining Hall at Bryant College. A reception and dinner was followed by "A Roast for Gertrude." More than 350 persons attended. Mrs. Hochberg leaves the College July 31 after twenty-eight years of service. She served as the Director of Public Relations for the first twenty-six years before becoming a vice president.

Members of the press, the electronic media, and representatives of the many community groups attended the festivities.

Gertrude Hochberg was honored for her many contributions to the educational and political life of the state. Her leadership in the cause of the status of women, and her long record of service to community organizations was also noted.

Mrs. Hochberg is the first member of the non-working press to be honored by election to the Board of Directors of the R. I. Press Association. She is also a member of the New England Press Association (NEPA) and has served several times on their Education and Awards Committees.

An Officer and Founder of the Women's Intergroup Committee of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Mrs. Hochberg was also the first woman appointed to the 1960 National Selection Committee of the Thomas J. Watson (IBM) Fellowships.

Her long record of community service includes Director of the Speakers Bureau for the United Way, Director of the publicity campaigns for Health Careers Project of R. I., the World Affairs Committee, the Council of Social Agencies of R. I., the Urban League, the R. I. Nurses Association, and many other organizations. Mrs. Hochberg also conducted a symposium on "Volunteer Voices" which resulted in the organization known as "Volunteers in Action" (VIA). She was recently inducted into the Rhode Island Heritage Hall of Fame.

Mrs. Hochberg is listed in the "Who's Who of Women."

Alumni Update

Alumni Senior Luncheon

At the Senior Luncheon held on May 20, more than 400 graduates were welcomed to the ranks of alumni by Lawrence E. Brown '69, representing the Executive Board of the Alumni Association.

President William T. O'Hara in his remarks stressed the importance of continuing communication between the alumni and the College. He expressed pride in the Class of '77 for its outstanding leadership and dedication of purpose. In their first night on campus, Dr. O'Hara said, the O'Hara's were greeted and welcomed by several students who dropped by the President's residence. It is that touch of sensitivity, together with quality education, that will lead Bryant to greatness.

Fraser A. Lang, Director of Alumni Relations and Development, appointed from the Class of '77 Sonja Valentine as head agent for Alumni Relations and Michael D. Hammer as head agent for Development.

Charles E. Bradley, '69, President of the Alumni Association, charged the graduates to become active alumni and to participate in promoting the objectives of the Association.

Presentation of the commencement awards was made by Professor Richard J. Fontaine, Chairman of the Committee.

Mailing Problems

Many alumni have reported delays in receiving publications and notices sent by the College. We sincerely regret any inconvenience caused by mail delays and are already making plans to move our deadline for all of next year's mailings ahead.

1933	1958
1938	1963
1943	1968

New Officers

Elected to new terms on the Executive Board of the Alumni Association were Arnold E. Abbott '62, George A. Battey '49, Leslie Kirker Hubbard '44, and Michael W. Tripp '75. Hundreds of alumni voted by mail in the selection process, and the closeness of the election resulted in the election of four rather than three persons.

Regional Club News

Growing numbers of enthusiastic alumni and friends are attending regional club meetings in Florida and Connecticut. And by way of a questionnaire, the Washington, D. C. Chapter is currently exploring the interest of Bryant alumni in the area for programs to be held next fall.

In Ft. Lauderdale an informal dinner was held on May 18 in the Florida Farmers Market. A steering committee was formed and election of officers is underway.

At the invitation of the Connecticut Chapter, Assistant Professor Brian Guck addressed the group on "The Effects of Inflation on your Budget and What to do About It." Under discussion are plans for a Bryant alum to serve as a contact person in each Greater Hartford community.

Ranging from Massachusetts to California, inquiries about the formation of new clubs have been received in the Alumni Office. Mrs. Louis Ruvolo Scott, Class of '65 and newly elected President of the Alumni Association, has listed as a high priority the expansion of the regional club program when the Executive Council resumes its meetings in September.

For old time's sake more than 400 alumni, together with family and friends, attended Bryant '77 alumni reunion festival June 17-19. From Alpha to Xi, the Greek Letter Council Fraternity and Sorority reunions climaxed the informal barbecue which opened the weekend.

Mr. G. William Miller, Chairman of Textron, Inc., delivered the keynote address -- "The Role of Business in Society." Other events, including campus tours, class reunion luncheons, seminars, exhibits and dedication ceremonies offered entertainment and variety to suit every age.

Benjamin A. Armstrong '03, 97 years young, traveled from his California home to attend the festival. Not only did he attend every event, he sought out waltz partners at the Annual Dinner Dance. Entertained by his wit and humor, alums and guests alike voted him star performer.

Alumni Directory at the Printers

This fall, Harris Publishing Company will mail the most detailed and up-to-date directory of the College alumni ever published to hundreds of alumni.

Publication of this book

- answers requests from scores of graduates who have requested that such a book be done
- permits all our Alumni to have a means of contacting friends and classmates
- updates alumni records in support of regional club programs and reunion activities

The College receives no financial return from the sale of the directories. Proceeds from the sale by Harris Publishing are used by them to pay the cost of producing the directory.

All alumni were called by the publisher to verify the information on the questionnaires. They were asked if there was any interest in purchasing a book. They may also have been asked if they wished to advertise.

The Alumni Associations and the Office of Alumni Relations hope your contact with Harris was a pleasant one. We made every effort to insure that they approached our alumni in a pleasant and responsible manner. Before contracting with them to publish the book, we also ascertained that they are a highly reputable business concern.

We feel that the directory is a necessary and welcome addition to our Alumni program. You may not have chosen to purchase one. Please be assured of a warm welcome at the Alumni office at any time, where copies of the directory will be available for you to review.

Annual Fund Nears $100,000 Goal

Nelson J. Gulski '26, Chairman of the 1976-77 Annual Fund, has reported that, as of July 1, the drive was better than 90% of the way towards reaching its goal.

A last minute campaign to selected groups of alumni and to those with outstanding phothon pledges is expected to close the final gap. The appeal stresses the need for increased alumni giving in "building a better Bryant" and in maintaining the College's standards of excellence.

This year's gifts include hundreds of donors who have not previously given to Bryant. For the first time, the current Fund drive has directed appeals to parents, the business community, and employees of the College as well as alumni.

President O'Hara Honors Volunteers

President and Mrs. O'Hara hosted a luncheon in honor of alumni and friends who have donated hours of service to the alumni and development office over the past year. Cited for their support of the College were: Arnold E. Abbott '62, who has assisted on updating the records system; Marie (Mrs. Roger A. '59) Franceur, who has helped in the records office; Elvira Cardarelli Knight '26 and Helen Rose Jones '21, who sorted and processed the thousands of questionnaires for the alumni directory; Chon Day, the internationally famous cartoonist and his wife, Irene Townley Day '31, who donated the cartoon for the third annual fund mailing; and Louise Ruvolo Scott '65, who has provided invaluable assistance on a number of office projects.

Bryant Alumni Name First Woman President

Louise Ruvolo Scott '65 of Greenville, RI was elected President of the Bryant College Alumni Association. Mrs. Scott is the first woman to be named to this position. Other officers elected at the Executive Committee meeting held at the Alumni House in June include: Vice-President, Karl Ericson '58 of Chepachet, President of the Rhode Island CPA Association; Secretary, Susan Ceppetelli Nagle '66 of Swansea, former head of the Business Department of the Swansea School system; Treasurer, John S. Renza, Jr., '70 of Cranston, Certified Public Accountant and an instructor at Rhode Island Junior College.

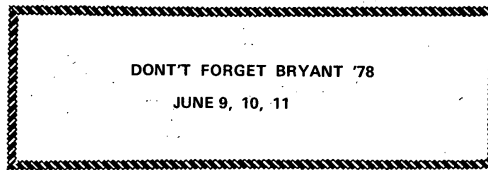

Long interested in Bryant alumni affairs, Mrs. Scott has been a member of the Alumni Association Executive Board for the past three years, two of which she served as Treasurer. Until her election this month, she acted as Secretary to the Executive Board. Mrs. Scott has also been active as Chairman of the Alumni Dance Committee and a member of the planning committee for the Alumni Senior Luncheon in 1976 and 1977.

This past spring, Louise Scott chaired the first meeting of the Providence Regional Alumni Club held in the Bryant College Student Center. She has also been a member of the planning committees for Bryant '76 and Bryant '77, the College Alumni Weekend Festivals, and has played an active role in the Bryant Phothon.

Louise Scott is married to William R. Scott, a 1966 graduate of Bryant. They are the parents of four children.

Some Thoughts on Graduation Day from an Alumnus

by Charles Wielgus, Class of 1947

On this happy and important day you are understandably pleased, proud - and perhaps relieved. It is possible that your parents are even prouder. And understandably so, for they have contributed importantly to this day.

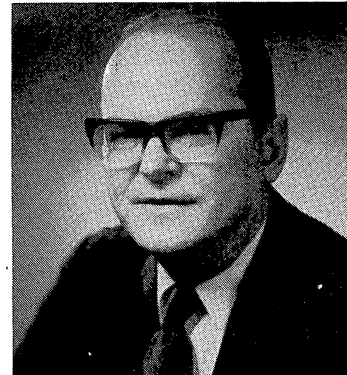

It would also be understandable if some of you felt more pleased and more proud than others -- those who did very well in terms of honors or extracurricular activities or both. And it's possible that some of you, despite the achievement of graduation, feel a little disappointed because you didn't do quite as well as you could have.

To each of you I say, with the advantage and perspective of experience in observing the development of individuals in a variety of careers and life styles: Be neither too self - satisfied nor discouraged, because this day marks a new beginning in your personal development.

As we observe the growth and fulfillment of individual lives in our own families, communities and organizations, we can see that a significant part of such growth frequently begins after college. Certainly, the college experience is a very important one and it is often the indispensable ingredient of a successful and productive life. But it would be misleading to suggest that your future is preordained by the level of accomplishment during your college years. In any graduating class, it is likely that the distance between those with the highest scholastic standings and those with the lowest is not so great as to be insurmountable by those personal qualities are not always apparent in the academic environment. For in this increasingly specialized age, scholastic brilliance or aptitude alone are not enough. Character, integrity, personality, interest and persevering application are still, as I believe they have always been, characteristics most evident in successful men and women.

We live in a world in which most of us must compete in order to achieve. In that competition, you and I are very fortunate to have had the opportunity to study at this truly unique institution. Over the years, Bryant College has undeservedly earned a very fine reputation -- an excellent one in the world of work, the world in which our economic needs are met and in which most of us make our major contribution to society.

Bryant's well - balanced curriculum of specialized education in business principles and techniques, together with the high quality of its liberal arts subjects, have prepared you well for the opportunities and challenges which lie ahead. These opportunities and challenges will be real and demanding. They will change, perceptively or imperceptively, with every change in technology and with every shift in the social, economic and political structure.

To you, therefore, who have earnestly applied your energies and talents while at Bryant, I would suggest that this is no time to rest. The energy and qualities that brought success in your academic life will prove beneficial in the careers yet to come, but only if the effect is sustained and only if you continue to apply and develop those characteristics.

To you who may now wish you tried a little harder, I would suggest that the next four years will probably be even more important than the past four in shaping the direction of your life. Let whatever concern you may have with your academic effort and performance be the trigger that sparks a new interest, a greater drive and a more determined effort to succeed where Bryant's graduates have always done so well.

To all of you, therefore, the message is essentially the same: This day is indeed an important and a joyous milestone, but one that marks a beginning rather than an end.

If my message seems overly serious on such a day of celebration, let me hasten to add that the really fun years are ahead.

Because we have shared in a common educational experience, I know you will bring to those years of challenge and opportunity all that you have received at Bryant, as well as your own ample supply of natural aptitude and enthusiasm.

I congratulate you for meeting the commitment you made when you entered Bryant and confidently predict equal fulfillment of the promise you represent today.
