2. Received a call from the office of Admiral Tom Davies, ACDA who would like a half hour of your time to discuss CTB Verification. [redacted] tells me that this subject is part of your Presidential brief and what the Admiral has to offer may be useful. I have tentatively scheduled this for 1030 on Tuesday, 4 September, prior to the Presidential pre-brief that afternoon. Admiral Davies said he would be coming alone. If this is oke with you--should I ask [redacted] to sit in?

3. The Webster luncheon is oke for the 27th of September. ||

4. Learned from Presidential Scheduling that the Presidential Briefs will now be every two weeks. We are firm for 5 September, but will have to check the week before the next one to determine what day--seems the President will be taking trips in between, so our briefings may not be every other Wednesday or Thursday, but one day in that week.

5. Had the Presidential Box checked out for the key. No one could find it. The Park Service Support Staff are the people who handle this. I haven't called the White House Social Office as yet, but I would think this is not the first time a key has been misplaced. I will wait another day--and then call the Social Office and ask them first--if the key had been turned in. Then if it has not, I will wait for their further instruction. Maybe someone used the box Sunday night? found the key and turned it in?

Admiral Turner: Due to faulty machine, here's item 1:

1. Hedley Donovan has requested some time with you. I advised his office you would be here on 5 September if that was soon enough. He said fine, he would only need a few minutes of your time, so I set it up for 1000 at his request. I asked if there was any particular subject and was told just that the President has asked him to see some people. Under the circumstances, don't you think it would be a good idea to have Mr. Donovan drop over (I could go over and tell his girl and escort him into your office). This way he could see all the people that are going to be jammed in here that day working on the Presidential Brief. Then, when the question comes up as to whether we need space, Mr. Donovan can confirm it from personal observation.

Not available for lunch all week.
