ALLEN DULLES INTERVIEWED

CPYRGHT

JULIAN BARBER: "A former Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Allen Dulles, is our Newsday guest today. And in just a moment, Eddie Gallaher will talk with him about his new book, 'The Secret Surrender.'"

* * *

GALLAHER: "Allen Dulles, my guest today, is the author of this new book called 'The Secret Surrender' I don't think Mr. Dulles needs any introduction to you. He spent a great -- the part -- practically all of his life in the service of our government. He was Chief of the Central Intelligence Agency and during World War II, the man in charge of the OSS mission in Switzerland, which is what this story is about. A fabulous tale, that I think makes James Bond look a little bit tame.

"'The Secret Surrender' was exactly what, Mr. Dulles? This is the surrender of what forces?"

DULLES: "It was the surrender of the Nazi and Fascist forces that we were fighting against in northern Italy -- fighting against the allies in northern Italy at the end of the war."

GALLAHER: "Now, these were all secret negotiations. About how much time did you spend on these negotiations?"

DULLES: "Three or four months."

GALLAHER: "Is that right? And who originated the idea this...."

DULLES: "The idea first was brought to me by an Italian industrialist who was very worried that the end of the war
