7. [redacted] Met briefly with Mr. Robert Michaels, House Appropriations Committee, who advised that the morning briefing had gone well and that other than a matter of additional information to be provided by Mr. John Clarke, D/PPB, there are no staff follow-ups from this meeting. He noted that the question did not arise concerning the next date for meeting with the Subcommittee.

10. [redacted] Called J. Sourwine, Senate Internal Security, and asked if he could give me any estimate on when [redacted] will come up for a hearing. Sourwine thought that there would probably be no hearing since the testimony is all in from the [redacted] hearings. Sourwine thinks a report will be written on this and the bill will then go to the full Committee. He assured me that nothing would take place within the next week but felt certain there would be action by the end of the month.
