Ahlgren Again Heads Education Council

Frank R. Ahlgren, editor of the Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal, was elected to a fourth term as president of the American Council for Education in Journalism. The annual meeting took place April 24 in New York.

Two vicepresidents were named: Holt McPherson, editor of the High Point (N. C.) Enterprise, and Robert Mason, owner of station WNOR, Marion, Ohio.

John Stemple, dean of the School of Journalism at Indiana University, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.
