The Bondless Ranks of CIA

Washington, July 11 (AP)—

Adm. William F. Raborn, retired director of the Central Intelligence Agency, says few persons employed by the CIA actually participate in clandestine activities.

"The man who joins CIA has far less chance of identifying with James Bond or 'The spy who came in from the cold' than he does of serving as an academic researcher, economist, scientist, statistician, administrator, accountant or supply officer," Raborn said.
