

CPYRGHT
National

President Johnson announced at his news conference that Richard M. Helms, a career intelligence officer, has been named to replace William F. Raborn, a retired vice admiral, as director of the Central Intelligence. There were indications that either the President or the admiral had responded to the widespread criticism of Mr. Raborn's performance. [1:8; Text, P. 56.]