DEPUTY DIRECTOR RICHARD HELMS

CPYRGHT

Harry Reasoner substituting for Roger Mudd.

REASONER: "President Johnson met with reporters today, as he frequently does on weekends, but today for the first time since last year he gave advance notice of the session, two and a half hours.

"In ranging over a variety of subjects, Mr. Johnson announced almost casually and with few details his biggest news, a change in the top job at the CIA, the nation's spy network, which is now the center of a Congressional fight.

"Bruce Morton has the story.

MORTON: "Admiral William Rayborn is resigning as head of the Central Intelligence Agency, the President said, to be replaced by the current Deputy Director, Richard Helms."
