

CPYRGHT
CPYRGHT
CPYRGHT

Harrison G. Reynolds Dies; Retired Banker and Soldier

Special to the Herald Tribune
BEVERLY FARMS, Mass.

Apr. 27. — Harrison G. Reynolds, sixty-one, retired banker and provost marshal of the United States Air Corps during World War II, died Sunday at his home here.

Mr. Reynolds was a director of Scott and Williams, Inc., manufacturers of knitting machines in Lacomis, N. H., a former director and vice-president of the Rockland Atlas National Bank, of Boston, Mass., a former president and director of Ipswich Mills, Inc., and a former treasurer of the Aguna Mahogany and Timber Co.

Long Military Career

He began his military service with the Army on the Mexican border in 1917, following his graduation that year from Harvard University. He retired from the Air Force in 1955 with the rank of colonel and held the Legion of Merit with an oak leaf cluster. He received government service with the Central Intelligence Agency, receiving the Intelligence Medal of Merit when he retired last December.

He was chairman of the American Red Cross campaign in Boston in 1947. He was commodore of the Cruising Club of America in 1954, a former director of St. George's School in Newport, R. I., and a member of the Fly and Somerset Clubs, the Harvard Clubs of Boston and New York, the New York Yacht Club and the Army and Navy Club of Washington, D. C. He was born in Milton, Mass.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Jean Fletcher Reynolds; a son, Philip M. Reynolds; a daughter, Mrs. Kennedy Middendorf; a brother, James R. Reynolds; a sister, Mrs. R. Peyton Burnett, and six grandchildren. A funeral service will be held at 2:30 p. m. on Tuesday at St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church in Beverly Farms.