

CPYRGHT

Complete Course for U. S. Executives

Thirty-one governmental and military officials have been accredited by the American Management Association as the first graduates of its four-week course for government executives at Saranac Lake, N. Y. Robert J. Duncan, course director second from left, is shown displaying a diploma and class photograph to three graduates: R. W. Sheay, left, personnel officer of the Central Intelligence Agency; Clarence I. Fox, center, regional commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service in New York; and Lewis E. Lint, right, executive secretary of the Iowa State Tax Commission. About 300 executives are expected to attend the course on management principles in government this year.

CPYRGHT