WASHINGTON, D. C. — A story of sex and subversion in the U. S. embassy in Poland appears to be heading toward a congressional investigation. EXCLUSIVE To The Register

High officials of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) received the information in 1959 from what they regarded as a reliable source who was high in the Soviet intelligence apparatus.

At the time, CIA officials said they could not identify the source because he still was operating in the KGB (Soviet committee for state security) network, and had agreed to remain in his job as an informant.

Seduced Guard

The informant was known to the CIA as Lt. Col. Michael Goleniewski, although this was not his actual name.

Representative Michael Feighan (Dem., Ohio), who has questioned Goleniewski, is demanding a congressional investigation of the information.

Goleniewski said that Polish party girls, acting as Soviet agents, had seduced nearly all of the members of the Marine guard and had been given a free run of the barracks and embassy at night.

The informant said a high foreign service officer, serving as embassy security officer, was an agent for Russia and was feeding information to the Communists while knowingly permitting the Marine guard to be seduced.

The wife of a high foreign service officer in the U. S. embassy made a trip to Moscow where the Soviets employed a handsome and debonair young Communist to seduce her, the CIA undercover agent reported.

She reportedly had lived with him for a week, had been photographed with him, and the KGB had planned to use the material and an offer of money to obtain security information from her husband.

Goleniewski reported other
