

FEB 28 1966

'ROUND THE WORLD

A News Digest From Our Global News Services, including Hearst Headline Service, the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service, Special Reports From the Manchester Guardian, The London Sunday Times and the London Sunday Observer, All Exclusive, Associated Press and United Press International.

Edited By DAN BRIGHAM

TOUGH LUCK for Senate Foreign Affairs Committee chairman Sen. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) After weeks of finagling for it, he finally gets CIA director Adm. William F. Raborn to talk to his group — behind closed doors. And then, what happens? "He not only told us nothing, but if he had, I couldn't tell you," Fulbright tells reporters after the encounter. (That's the law; CIA reports to the President, and the Defense Dept. It discusses its business for Congressional benefit only with senior members of Joint Appropriations, and Armed Services Committees of both Houses.) Fulbright knew this. Frustrating!