OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

Wednesday - 31 January 1973

25X1 1. [redacted] J. Sourwine called about the material I had provided him on the US-USSR basketball game and asked about the use of qualifying words such as allegedly, probably, etc., with respect to the intelligence connections of certain people mentioned in our paper. Sourwine said he would like to know whether these statements were made on a hard intelligence evaluation. I told him I would check with [redacted] 25X1 [redacted] and let him know.

25X1 2. [redacted] In response to her call, met with Dorothy Fosdick, Permanent Investigations Subcommittee staff, and received from her a study on the Soviet economy written by one Vadim D. Meniker. Richard Perle, of the Subcommittee staff, interviewed Meniker on his recent trip and found him the most worthwhile of the many "experts" he dealt with. Perle also noted that Meniker has outstanding credentials. Miss Fosdick requested a translation of the study to English and noted that it is the staff's opinion that our people will find the study useful. I told her I would relay her request.

25X1 4. [redacted] Met with William Savage, in the office of Representative James Jones (D., Okla.) and delivered a copy of World Oil '71 Facts and Figures requested yesterday. Savage told me that Jones (a freshman) has been assigned to both Armed Services and Interior and Insular Affairs Committees.
