3. He discussed with me the length of time which he should remain in the Agency. I told him that I was not anxious to have him leave but that under the assumption that he would be leaving sometime within the next year or two I had been giving some thought to a possible replacement and had thought of either [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. At first blush he was not enthusiastic about Emmett but thought that Hugh would be a very good choice. He said that he was willing to leave the Agency at any time we wanted him to but that if it were satisfactory to us he probably would remain until October of 1959. He will be 63 years of age next July and will have completed nine years of service in October. If he should remain until October, 1959, this would allow him to complete ten years of governmental service.
