DIARY NOTES

DD/S

W JYL

16 March 1964

1. I met with Bob Bannerman, John Tietjen, Bob Fuchs, Jack Earman, Emmett Echols, and Matt Baird to discuss briefly the outline for the short course for supervisors. Later in the day Jack Earman and I had another session on this subject, and I think that we have an honest difference of opinion as to how we should proceed. Jack felt that the entire presentation should be made by the chain of command, whereas Matt had suggested that the entire course be given by DD/S components and the Inspector General. I think that there is a middle ground here which would provide for participation by each Deputy Director as well as by the specialized DD/S components, but these details remain to be sorted out.

2. Mr. Kirkpatrick telephoned to say that he intended to have a meeting on "selection out" procedures sometime this week. I suggested that Emmett Echols, John Tietjen, and Bob Bannerman should all attend and agreed to notify them after he decides on the time. (The meeting has been scheduled for 19 March.)

3. Jack Earman was in to discuss the following:

a. At his request I agreed to send Jack a copy of the Monthly Report Highlights of the Office of Personnel.

b. Jack queried me as to why the cost of having newspapers delivered to the Headquarters building is about twice that of having them delivered to your home by a paperboy. (This was indeed news to me, and I want to have it looked into thoroughly.)

4. [REDACTED] who just returned from [REDACTED] where he was a club officer, was in to say "hello." He is en route to [REDACTED] to become the club officer there.

5. I met with Larry Houston, Bob Bannerman, Emmett Echols, and Jim Garrison to discuss a variety of problems resulting from the procurement of individual services through industrial-type contracts. We were generally agreed that this method of procuring personal services should be resorted to only as a last resort, that procedures should be established requiring notification of the Office of Personnel when this has been done, and that such personnel should be security processed and handled in generally the same way as staff employees. I agreed to draft a set of principles, which [redacted] is doing, and then to invite the affected components to a meeting to discuss the matter prior to the submission of a formal staff paper to General Carter.

6. I telephoned [redacted] of [redacted] to assure her that I would look into the case of her brother-in-law, [redacted] whose application for employment by the Agency was turned down. (I have referred the case to Emmett Echols.)

7. Jack Earman was in to discuss several items.

a. He asked me to read a paper which General Carter had given him regarding an implied allegation by a representative of the [redacted] corporation that our people had encouraged their top scientists to leave [redacted] and form their own company. I read the paper, which was rather lengthy, and concluded that this allegation was really a pitch by [redacted] to General Carter as a member of the Intelligence Community rather than of CIA. (Since no specific names were given, there is no way to rule out the possibility that this allegation might be true, and I suspect that it very definitely is true since this has been done in some cases in the past.

[redacted] is an example and [redacted] is a very spectacular example of a few years ago. I would guess that this is another reason why General Carter seems inclined to centralize all contracting responsibility in the Deputy Director for Support.)

b. Jack asked me to read a copy of a paper he is drafting for General Carter on Project MKULTRA. I have done this and will give Jack some changes and recommendations regarding responsibilities to be assumed by DD/S components if his over-all recommendations are accepted.

c. Jack handed me a paper which his inspection team had developed on the total number of people paid from CIA funds. On behalf of General Carter he requested that we undertake to ensure that these figures are brought up to date and that they are reasonably accurate. (This is a very delicate situation with the Clandestine Services, and I will probably have to have some personal conversations with Dick Helms or [redacted])
