1. At the Executive Committee Meeting this morning [redacted] gave a rundown on his recent trip to Latin America. He was particularly concerned about [redacted] and anticipated that, unless something is done to change the situation, riots and disorder will again break out on or about 9 January 1965, which is the anniversary of last year's riots.

2. [redacted] advised me that DD/P still has his [redacted] paper. Although they don't disagree with it, they say that it doesn't face up to the basic issue of who is going to do this sort of business. They want to make some "thoughtful" comment before they send it on.

3. I asked Dick Helms whether he had any suggestions for the position of Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury to supervise the Secret Service. He suggested that we give some consideration to [redacted]. He thought that [redacted] would be a good man for the job. Apparently they used [redacted] recently in making surveys with [redacted]. Dick thought that [redacted] would not be fast enough on his feet for a job like this. In connection with this problem, I telephoned Lt. General Andy Goodpaster, Assistant to the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to explain the problem to him and ask for his suggestions. He will call me back after he has had some time to think about the matter. He has excellent knowledge of the type of man this job would require, and he might know some military man who is either retired or about to retire who would fill the bill.

4. [redacted] and [redacted] were up to review the first draft of their paper on telephone vulnerability. This draft was merely an introduction to the problem and didn't begin to get practical enough for the Director to use in the way he apparently intends. Bob Bannerman and I made suggestions as to how they should approach the problem and asked them to come up with at least an outline sometime early next week.

5. I looked at the cave-in at the 2430 E Street area, and while it is indeed very close to the corner of the Central Building, it didn't appear to me that we are in any real danger of losing the building. When the revetment is replaced, I see no reason why everything shouldn't be as good as new. While looking at this area, I noted that there were at least eight cars parked on the grass in front of and around the South Building. On 25 September

[REDACTED] told me that they planned to eliminate parking on the grass except in emergencies. I therefore called Alan Warfield and told him to get this situation corrected without delay.

6. Dick Helms told me that he spoke to the Director yesterday about the possibility of promoting [REDACTED] Jim Angleton to Level V of the Executive Pay Scale. The Director asked that this matter be taken up with General Carter. Dick and I agreed that we would tackle General Carter again on this problem shortly after his return.
