DIARY NOTES

DD/S [redacted]

4 February 1965

25X1A

1. I talked with John Clarke about the memorandum of 28 January 1965 to the Executive Director from the Deputy Director for Plans, subject: "JOT Input for the Clandestine Services, FY 1966 and 1967." John agreed with my idea that we should tell Dick Helms that we expect him to take ninety JOT's and that we will, of course, be glad to have thirty internal JOT's if he can provide thirty who are qualified. We will not, however, lower our standards. I undertook to draft a proposed reply. (I asked Matt Baird to do this.)

2. Matt Baird told me that [redacted] a member of the Inspector General's staff who is working on the [redacted] and [redacted] surveys, came to him to discuss the [redacted] question again. Matt told him that this was the umpteenth time that this matter had been studied in the last several years and that, while the Office of Training has never sought this project, they were ready, willing, and able to run it at least as well as it is being run if they were given the real estate, the money, and the personnel to do it. (I want to talk with Jack Earman about this and to be kept informed on the progress of these surveys.)

3. I chaired a meeting of DD/S staff people; [redacted] from DD/P; Jack Earman, the Inspector General; Emmett Echols, [redacted] from the Office of Personnel; and John Clarke and [redacted] from BPAM to discuss the problem of statistical reporting of non-staff personnel. I think that it was a constructive meeting. We agreed that there were two parts to our over-all problem: (a) what do we have to provide to the Bureau of the Budget, and (b) what do we need to satisfy Agency requirements. We also recognized that we have to make our peace with the Bureau of the Budget by July of this year and that in order to proceed with this program and meet the deadline, we should keep changes to existing categories of personnel at a minimum and should concentrate on developing a statistical reporting system. Thereafter, we can study the categories and make whatever changes are necessary. Simultaneous with the development of a system, we should solicit from the Area Divisions and others as appropriate a "ballpark" figure of just what we have in all categories at the moment. I emphasized that what we want to know is not only how many and what kinds of people are being paid from CIA funds but also what proprietary projects, such as [redacted] we own and operate but are not financed with CIA funds. I offered the chairmanship of this committee to BPAM, and it was declined. I therefore appointed [REDACTED] as chairman of a committee to be made up of a representative from BPAM, DD/P, and the Office of Computer Services to get on with this problem as rapidly as possible.
