

Preface

This directory is intended to provide in easily accessible form basic information, including the identification of persons, on an international Communist front organization and its national affiliates. Since these organizations, in spite of Communist control, are not composed exclusively of Communist party members, the inclusion of any specific name in the directory should not be considered as evidence of Communist party affiliation. Experience has shown, however, that the proportion of Communists is highest among those persons occupying positions as functionaries in the international bodies of these fronts.

It is recommended that those holding the directory annotate the personal entries under the national affiliates of primary concern to show Communist party membership wherever this fact is known.

GREAT BRITAIN

The Haldane Society of this position was

The Haldane Society, one of the most important of the national affiliates of the IADL until its disaffiliation in late 1958 over dissatisfaction regarding the IADL's attitude towards Soviet action in Hungary. Originally (early 1930s) a forum of Labor Party lawyers, the Haldane Society was taken over by its Communist members until it became practically a Communist front. This caused a loss of members from 520 in 1948 until only 188 remained in 1959 at which time the non-Communists, led by Stuart Shields, would have left if the Society had not agreed to disaffiliate, ~~in a contingency the Communists wanted to avert at all costs.~~
