imprisonment, ten years' loss of civil rights, and confiscation of property for spitting on a hanged AVH officer pictured in Life magazine. Musician Jenő SIPOCZ was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and three years' loss of civil rights for playing "inflammatory" music. András KOVACS was sentenced to 13 years' imprisonment for wishing death to a policeman. While this list permits no inference regarding the technical legality of the Kadar Government's action against the Hungarian people, it does clearly suggest that the larger issues of justice and human rights have been grossly violated.

The Hungarian Government has seen fit to give wide publicity to a few trials, such as that of Ilona TÓTH and her companions, executed on a charge of murder. It evidently hoped by this means to arouse world opinion against the action of all the Hungarian people in the October Revolution. Such widely publicized trials may obscure the cases of thousands of less prominent, named and unnamed Hungarians arrested, imprisoned, or executed. It is hoped that this list will permit a truer perspective of the extent and purpose of punitive action being undertaken by the Kadar Government against thousands of Hungarian citizens.

EXPLANATION OF COLUMN ENTRIES

Every effort has been made to avoid duplication resulting from variant spellings of names.

The place name given in parentheses beneath a name refers to the individual's place of residence or, where that was not available, to the town in which the individual was arrested and/or tried. Where only the name of the county of residence was available, that fact has been indicated.

COLUMN 2

Minors whose exact ages were not available have been indicated by the letter "M".

COLUMN 3

Occupations have been given as reported. Information regarding the role of some individuals in the October Revolution (e.g., membership on workers' councils) have also been entered in this column.

COLUMN 4

The specific alleged offense (e.g. hiding arms, printing and distributing leaflets, etc.) has been given when known. The more general entry "rev activity" (revolutionary activity) has been used to denote various offenses involving acts of resistance to the Kadar government during and since the October Revolution for which more detailed information was not available.

COLUMN 5

The action taken by the Kadar government or its organs in regard to the individual has been given insofar as that information was available. Where only the arrest of an individual has been shown, information concerning his subsequent trial and sentencing has either not been reported in the press, or was not available.

Specific sentences, when known, have been given; where a death sentence was known to have been carried out, the word "executed" has been entered. Where the original sentence was known to have been increased or reduced, both the first and altered sentences have been given.

COLUMN 6

Source and date of the information have been given in Column 6.
