6. [redacted] OC, one of our students at Naval War College, was in the city one day last week. Even though his time was short and his schedule hectic, he agreed to spend a few minutes with the men who are scheduled to attend the School's next session. At Headquarters last Friday, Mr. [redacted] met

notes

"As you know, Bruce Clarke (D/OSR) was here at the War College last Thursday and Friday. He spoke to the class on the Soviets one day and on the Chicoms the next, and in the interim very kindly made himself available for consultations with both students and faculty.

His visit was an outstanding success in every regard, and all students with whom I have talked have rated his appearance as perhaps the single highlight of the year. Perhaps the best way to sum up reactions is to quote two overheard remarks. First, as we were leaving the auditorium after his initial talk, I heard one student turn to another and say 'They've certainly got some damned smart people in that Agency.' The second, and one that pleases me immensely, was passed on by Admiral Colbert's aide. The Admiral made the remark that as far as he was concerned, Bruce's visit represented the best offered at the War College during his tenure as president.

The company made many nickels; the above remarks are representative of the sentiments of both students and staff."

see whether ITB could contribute in any way to Elissa's course.
The conclusion was that Chief, ITB will give several hours of instruction, will monitor what is given in the next running of the Language School's ITC, and then see what other contribution can be made.
