The schematics asked for comprise three circuit drawings. It is the policy of [redacted] not to release any of our circuit drawings outside of the division except in circumstances where the recipient needs them to build equipment for us and has executed agreements satisfactory to our legal department. In the present instance, the schematics cannot be released. Specifically, interface information in the nature of voltage levels and pulses appearing at the terminals, together with any precautionary notes, can be compiled and released by Engineering in so far as that information is necessary.
