In attendance:

[REDACTED]

1. The subject meeting was held in IPD on 24 March 1966 at 1300 and was called to insure that there was clear understanding between all parties concerned as to what was expected from each contractor under their respective contracts.

2. The mission of each contractor was defined as follows:

a. [REDACTED] is to structure a Substantive Data Base and functionally define a computer oriented system for the handling thereof.

b. [REDACTED] is to provide the Center with an analytical management tool i.e., a mathematical model, which will aid in more effective operation of NPIC by permitting the effects of any proposed changes to be tested before such changes are actually initiated.

3. While it was recognized that there would be a certain amount of overlap in the investigative work of the two contractors, it was felt that such a overlap would not preclude either from the accomplishment of their designated mission.

4. In order to minimize the repetitive acquisition of background data and to insure that the Government derives the maximum benefit from each contract, the contractors were directed to maintain a free exchange of investigative information of mutual interest.
