U.S. Ambassador to Cyprus Slain as Mob Attacks Embassy

U.S. Ambassador Roger P. Davies was shot and killed on 19 August in what U.S. officials termed a carefully coordinated attack on the Embassy in Nicosia. The attack came when a demonstration by Greek Cypriots suddenly became violent. Automatic weapons and rifle fire broke out from at least two points and concentrated on the Ambassador's residence and second-story office. There is evidence that some rifle fire came from the upper floor of a nearby building, supporting the belief that the violent attack was preplanned. A local employee of the Embassy was also killed during the attack. Preliminary reports indicated that the extremist EOKA-B organization, which favors the union of Cyprus with Greece, participated in the attack, and also that men in National Guard uniforms were seen shooting at the Embassy. According to an Associated Press report, warrants were issued on 20 August for the arrest of three persons in connection with the slaying of the Ambassador. Their names have not been disclosed. Attempt to Kill Jamaican Security Minister in Miami

An attempt was made to kill Eli Matalon, Jamaican Minister of National Security and Justice, on 15 August, according to a UPI story in the 16 August Washington Post. Matalon, who is leading a crackdown on drug smuggling in his country, was visiting the offices of the Drug Enforcement Administration in Miami, and discovered a bulky package in his car when he left the DEA building. He became suspicious and summoned authorities, who defused a foreign-made fragmentation grenade. The grenade was live and the pin had been removed, but its wrapping had prevented it from exploding. Matalon dismissed the incident as an "occupational hazard" and asked that it be played in a low-key manner. A full investigation is underway, and DEA is providing protective service for Matalon and his family for the remainder of their stay in the Miami area. (UNCLASSIFIED)

CHRONOLOGY OF SIGNIFICANT INTERNATIONAL TERRORIST ACTS

DATE	PLACE	EVENT
14 August 1974	Syria, Damascus	Bomb Explosion at U.S. Pavilion. A homemade bomb exploding at night near the entrance of the U.S. pavilion at the Damascus International Fair caused moderate damage to the building and more serious damage to the "Skylab" exhibit. One pavilion guard and one civilian policeman sustained minor injuries. The Syrian Minister of Interior, who personally visited the site after the explosion, ordered an immediate investigation and arranged for the overnight repair of all visible damage. Guards have been doubled. A newly surfaced group, "The Arab Communist Organization," announced the following day that it was responsible for the bomb explosion. (UNCLASSIFIED)
19 August 1974	Cyprus, Nicosia	Cypriot Mob Kills U.S. Ambassador. The U.S. Ambassador and one local employee, an Embassy secretary, were killed when armed Cypriot demonstrators fired shots at the Ambassador's office and residence. (See Notes.) (UNCLASSIFIED)

Unknown

 On 1 August the Colombian Consulate in San Juan, Puerto Rico, received a letter, signed "Alejandro, ELAC" (not further identified), warning that those dealing with the Castro regime would be considered a military objective. Several consulates that have been bombed in Puerto Rico also received letters signed ELAC. In addition, the Consul General has received several telephone calls advising that the Colombian Consulate would be the next one bombed. (Comment: After the Argentine Consulate was bombed on 22 April, the Venezuelan Consulate received a telephone call advising it would be bombed next; the Peruvian Consulate was bombed on 26 July and the Venezuelan Consulate on 6 August. See Tab A, 14 August.) (UNCLASSIFIED)

Jewish Woman in Hijacking Plot Released from Soviet Prison

Silva I. Zalmanson, a Soviet Jewish woman who had been sentenced in 1970 to ten years in prison for her role in an unexecuted plot to hijack a Soviet aircraft, was released on 22 August, reportedly as a result of public protest in the West concerning her poor state of health and continued detention. Zalmanson, her husband, her two brothers and eight others, all but two of them Jews, had been arrested on 15 June 1970 at Leningrad as they started to board a small aircraft for a local flight to a place near the Finnish border, as their first step toward escaping to Israel. Zalmanson has advised news services in Moscow that she does not intend to leave the USSR until she has been permitted to see her husband and brothers, who are still serving prison sentences. She plans to ask authorities to pardon them as well.
