1. The 6th Meeting of the Subcommittee for Guidance to Collectors was held on 22 November 1957.

3. The summary of collection guidance relating to sub-launched missiles drafted by the Navy member was reviewed. It was agreed that:

  - b. The list of all agencies guidance to collectors regarding sub-launched missiles would be forwarded to GMIC with the recommendation that it be circulated to all agencies with GMIC's recommendation that each agency make its guidance material available to the other upon demand.

4. A proposal that the SGC undertake to draft a combined guide for collectors regarding sub-launched missiles was discussed; however, was not approved for the following reasons:

a. Each agency collects intelligence to support its own estimates production program which in turn is keyed to the over-all mission of that agency. Accordingly, guidance to its collectors must be tailored by the individual agency according to its needs.

b. A combined type intelligence guide would not serve a useful purpose in view of the wide implementation given the sub-launched missile collection problem in the agency guidance now extant.

5. A further proposal was made by the CIA member that SGC should prepare a statement of the potential of each collection source to collect guided missile sub-launched missile data based on proven performance. After some discussion it was agreed that the CIA member could draft an outline of the proposal he had in mind for Committee consideration at the next meeting.

6. The Chairman announced that a special meeting would be called to consider the requirements list prepared by CIA for GMIC approval, as soon as this list is reviewed by the SGC members.

7. It was agreed that the next regular meeting will be moved up one working day to 2 December 1957.
