	GENERAL
>	Smaller NATO countries may attempt to check power of Standing Group:
	US NATO Deputy Spofford warns that it would be a mistake to underestimate the resentment caused by the three-power Standing Group's refusal to present a report or to be represented the Ottawa meeting of NATO Finance and Foreign Ministers. He expects the some of the minor NATO countries will now press strongly for greater influ ence over the deliberations of the Standing Group.
	Comment: The Standing Group argues that the Ottawa meeting is primarily non-military. Several NATO nations, however, claim that a military progress report is needed, and that a Standing Group representative should be present to answer questions. The NATO governments not represented on the Standing Group are jealous of the power they have delegated, and, unless the Standing Group takes steps to keep them better informed of its deliberations, they will undoubtedly demand a share in decisions now made by the Big Three.
_	Indonesia likely to sign Japanese peace treaty:
	Despite important political and press opposition in Indonesia to signature of the Japanese peace treaty, the US Ambassador in Djakarta expects the government to authorize its delegation at 7	when the question of ratification subsequently arises.
