NOTES

Indonesia: Sukarno, in an attempt to seize the political initiative and deal directly with Indonesia's rampant inflation, yesterday ordered an exchange of Indonesian currency at a rate of 1,000 old to one new rupiah. A major Indonesian problem has been an excess of currency in circulation. This new measure will reduce the number of bank notes extant, but will have little effect on basic inflationary problems unless the government also decides to impose credit restrictions.

South Korea:

Kim has discarded his previous steam-roller approach to political action. However, his goal of party-centered authoritarian rule is likely to intensify opposition attacks on the regime and stir up infighting between factions in the ruling party.
