Spain-Morocco: Spain and Morocco are deeply involved in a dispute over phosphate-rich Spanish Sahara.

Madrid maintains it is prepared eventually to grant self-determination in the territory, but that it does not intend to comply with a resolution passed last week by the UN committee on colonialism. The resolution would permit Spanish Sahara's neighbors to play a consultative role in a UN-sponsored referendum on self-determination.

Spain fears that such a referendum would pave the way for Moroccan control of the territory. Last June the Moroccan Government backed independence for Spanish Sahara,

NOTE

Togo: President Grunitzky, with the belated backing of Chief of Staff Eyadema and most of Togo's Army, appears to have put down yesterday's coup attempt. The plotters at their peak managed to seize the Lome radio station for a few hours and to put several thousand anti-Grunitzky demonstrators on the streets. A stiff curfew has now been imposed, and police are seeking the leader of the opposition Togo Unity party. Grunitzky still faces serious political problems, however, as he bargains with representatives of Togo's many factions to replace the cabinet he dismissed on 20 November. [REDACTED]
