President Jimmy Carter
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear President Carter:

As a depository library, we attempt to make available a wide variety of publications issued by the agencies of the U.S. government. The depository program makes it possible for this library with limited financial resources to serve its own-"community" of 4500 students and 250 faculty as well as the general population of this region.

The C.I.A. is one agency which issues many useful maps and reports, only a small portion of which it makes available for the depository libraries such as us. I speak not of confidential materials, but reports such as:

China: Agricultural performance in 1975

Indonesia-1965: The coup that backfired

International and transnational terrorism: Diagnosis and prognosis

These are apparently made available only to a very select few university and special libraries.

I respectfully ask that you insist that the C.I.A. meet the requirements of the depository law (U.S.C. title 44, section 1902) which says:

"Government publications, except those determined by their issuing components to be required for official use only or for strictly administrative or operational purposes which have no public interests or educational value and publications classified for reasons of national security, shall be made available to depository libraries through the facilities of the Superintendent of Documents for public information. Each component of the Government shall furnish the Superintendent of Documents a list of such publications it issued during the previous month, that were obtained from sources other than the Government Printing Office."

Sincerely yours,

Nancy C. Lufturrow

Mr. Stansfield Turner, Director of Central Intelligence
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Mr. Turner:

As a depository library, we attempt to make available a wide variety of publications issued by the agencies of the U.S. government. The depository program makes it possible for this library with limited financial resources to serve its own "community" of 4500 students and 250 faculty as well as the general population of this region.

Your agency is one which issues many useful maps and reports, only a small portion of which it makes available for the depository libraries such as us. I speak not of confidential materials, but reports such as:

China: Agricultural performance in 1975

Indonesia-1965: The coup that backfired

International and transnational terrorism: Diagnosis and prognosis

These are apparently made available only to a very select few university and special libraries.

I respectfully ask that your agency faithfully abide by the depository law, (U.S.C. title 44, section 1902) which says:

"Government publications, except those determined by their issuing components to be required for official use only or for strictly administrative or operational purposes which have no public interests or educational value and publications classified for reasons of national security, shall be made available to depository libraries through the facilities of the Superintendent of Documents for public information. Each component of the Government shall furnish the Superintendent of Documents a list of such publications it issued during the previous month, that were obtained from sources other than the Government Printing Office."

Sincerely yours,

Nancy C. Lufbarrow
Documents Librarian

MEMORANDUM FOR: The Director

DDI # 1936-77

Forwarded herewith is a response to a letter addressed to you from a college librarian asking why Agency unclassified publications are not being distributed under the provisions of the depository library law. The letter states that the Joint Committee on Printing and Superintendent of Documents have told us we are exempt from the law's provisions and describes the various outlets the Agency uses for releasing unclassified publications.

Mr. Stansfield Turner, Director of Central Intelligence
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Mr. Turner:

As a depository library, we attempt to make available a wide variety of publications issued by the agencies of the U.S. government. The depository program makes it possible for this library with limited financial resources to serve its own "community" of 4500 students and 250 faculty as well as the general population of this region.

Your agency is one which issues many useful maps and reports, only a small portion of which it makes available for the depository libraries such as us. I speak not of confidential materials, but reports such as:

China: Agricultural performance in 1975

Indonesia-1965: The coup that backfired

International and transnational terrorism: Diagnosis and prognosis

These are apparently made available only to a very select few university and special libraries.

I respectfully ask that your agency faithfully abide by the depository law, (U.S.C. title 44, section 1902) which says:

"Government publications, except those determined by their issuing components to be required for official use only or for strictly administrative or operational purposes which have no public interests or educational value and publications classified for reasons of national security, shall be made available to depository libraries through the facilities of the Superintendent of Documents for public information. Each component of the Government shall furnish the Superintendent of Documents a list of such publications it issued during the previous month, that were obtained from sources other than the Government Printing Office."

Sincerely yours,

Nancy C. Luffurrow
