8. Corn and wheat were raised in the areas surrounding Galiche and were shipped to Oryakhovo and south to Byala Slatina. There were small warehouses scattered throughout Galiche which were used for storage of these products.
9. The town had one church. It was located in the center of the town and called St Troitza Orthodox church. It was built of brick.
10. Most of the homes in Galiche were constructed of brick. The average house had four to five rooms. The homes were heated by wood. Water for cooking and washing were obtained from outside water hydrants which were scattered throughout the town in addition to three large public wells. One large well was in the park in the center of the town, another well was east of the town, and the third was south of Galiche.
11. Most of the homes had their WC's outside and had no bathrooms. The refuse, including the garbage, was hauled out of town by horse and wagon. Home owners also fed their garbage to the cows, horses, pigs, rabbits or used it for fertilizer. The average home owner owned a team of horses, one or two cows, a few sheep and some chickens.
12. The gymnasium school was the largest building in Galiche. It was a three-story brick building and it was located east of the town. Adjacent to this building there was a small building used as a library. Another small gymnasium was located north of the town and a third was located south of the town. It was amazing for a town of this size to have three such schools.
13. Until 1943, Galiche did not have any electricity. Electricity for the homes, buildings and offices in town came from Knezha and Byala Slatina villages both situated south of Galiche.
14. The area surrounding Galiche was hilly. South of Galiche near Knezha the area was densely wooded, primarily with large oak trees. Another heavily wooded section, about 10 kilometers across was located northwest of Galiche in the direction of Lipnitsa. A third forested area was located west of Galiche. Most of the timber cut in these forests was used locally.
15. It is possible to hide in these forested areas and survive on mushrooms, wild berries, grapes, wild apples, plums and nuts. Rabbits, hares, foxes, and wolves usually can be found in these forests.
16. The Skit River was about 500 meters west from the center of Galiche and flowed north to the Danube. The Skit River was about eight meters wide, shallow in some places and in other places two to three meters deep. Fishing in this river was done by fishing poles and nets. Very few fished in this river as it was necessary to have a license which was very expensive.
17. During the spring rains the Skit River gets to be about 20 meters wide and overflows the river banks. About 500 meters west of the center of the town and on the road leading to the small railroad station there was a small, narrow wooden bridge which crossed the Skit River. It was for pedestrian use only. The wagons and horses did not use this bridge but crossed the river in the shallow places.
18. Galiche had no factories except for one small flour mill. This mill was located about one and a half kilometers on the northeastern outskirts of the town. It employed from six to eight persons. This flour mill ground up the wheat and corn for the local farmers.
19. There was no hospital in Galiche but the town did have a small clinic, employing one doctor and one dentist. It was located in the center of the town near the park.
