Approved for Release 2008/10/17. CIA-RDP80-00810A00420380003-0 CLASSICATION CONTINUENTIAL CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY INFORMATION REPORT OD NO. COUNTRY Caechoslowskia Anti-Aircraft Artillery: Reservists Training Center in Prague FLACE ACQUIRED DATE OF FACE ACQUIRED DATE OF FROM SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO. SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO. 25X 25X 1. By order of the City Military General at Frague (Northern voluntary volitalated) Probaby dated 5 December 1952. Was required to particulate in a syscial IAA training program for reservisors. The classed were held at Training to the country of the coun			550
COUNTRY Csechoslovakia SUBJECT Anti-Aircraft Artillery: Reserviste Training NO OF PAGES 5 PLACE ACQUIRED DATE OF SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO. 25X 25X 25X 25X 25X 25X 25X 25			REPORT NO
SUBJECT Anti-Aircraft Artillery: Reserviste Training NO. OF PAGES 5 PLACE ACQUIRED DATE OF INFO. 1. By order of the City Military Commend at Prague (America referring volitalisty) PAGE OF INFO. 25X 25X 25X 1. By order of the City Military Commend at Prague (America referring volitalisty) Page 10 FORT NO. 25X 25X 25X 25X 25X 25X 25X 25	•	INFORMATION REPORT	CD NO.
Center in Prague Place	COUNTRY	Czechoslovakia	DATE DISTR 8 June 1954
25X 25X 25X 25X 25X 25X 25X 25X	SUBJECT		NO. OF PAGES 5
DATE OF INFO. By order of the City Military Germend at Frague (Neetwho rejonate volitalstvi. Proho) dated 5 December 1952. was required to participate in a special AAA training program for recentraises. The classes were held at Frague 15—Evanik, na Krizku 1/cp. 77 every Wednesday from 1400 to 2000 hours. 25X 2. The instruction was largely devoted to antiaircraft defense. The instructors stressed that the purpose of the training was to proper crows for the antiaircraft defense of Frague and that the participants must therefore become theroughly familiar with the operation of the Ag guns. For the training period, three model 88-mm, guns and one model 20-mm, gun were employed. 3. The training was divided into three types: theoretical, practical, and political. a. The theoretical training included courses on Casch Army organization and regulations, type of Ag guns, fring of guns, chemical warfare and polson gas (phoagens, diphoagens, mustard gas), and aircraft characteristics (descriptions). b. Practical training included a basic training and tactics review, a weapons course (including small arms training), operation of the 88 and 20 mm. Ag guns (but only using wooden training shells), chanical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. These by Six to sight high-ranking officers, lieutement colonals or colonals, from the General Staff at Frague; the looked in on training courses and camined, the participants personally. 5. On one cocasion, prague had completed its antiaircraft defenses in the summer of 1753, with Ad guns having begin out us at destanced points.	ACQUIRE	D .	NO. OF ENCLS.
1. By order of the City Military Commend at Frague (Mestric voluntic velitalstvi peaks) dated 5 December 1952. was required to perticipate in a special AAA training program for receivances. The classes were held at Prague 15 - branic, na Erizku 1/ap. 77 every Wednesday from 1400 to 2000 hours. 2. The instruction was largely devoted to antiaircraft defense. The instructors stressed that the purpose of the training was to prepare crows for the antiaircraft defense of Prague and that the purpose crows for the antiaircraft defense of Prague and one model 20-mm gum were employed. 3. The training was divided into three types: theoretical, practical, and political. a. The theoretical training included courses on Ozech Army organization and regulations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical warfare and poison gas (phosgene, diphosgene, musterd gas), and aircraft characteristics (descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical decorptions). b. Practical training included a basic training and tactics review, a weapons course (including small arms training), operation of the 88 and 20 mm AA guns (but only using wooden training shells), chemical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pemphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. 4. These by six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenant colonals or colonals, from the General Staff at Prague; who looked in on training courses and commined the participants personally. Prague had completed its entiaircraft defenses in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been gut us at designated points around in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been gut us at designated points around in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been gut us at designated points around the participants personally.	DATE OF		· · · · · · · · ·
Practical training included a basic training and teacher and technical descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions of the training sal aircraft characteristics (descriptions of the training was to propose of the training period, three model 88-mm.gums and one model 20-mm.gum were employed. 3. The training was divided into three types: theoretical, practical, and political. a. The theoretical training included courses on Czech Army organization and regulations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical warfare and poison gas (phosgene, diphosgene, mustard gas), and aircraft characteristics (descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions of units wooden training shells), chemical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. 4. Characteristic training courses and examined the participants personally. Prague had completed its antiaircraft defenses in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set			25X
Practical training included a basic training and teacher and technical descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions of the training sal aircraft characteristics (descriptions of the training was to propose of the training period, three model 88-mm.gums and one model 20-mm.gum were employed. 3. The training was divided into three types: theoretical, practical, and political. a. The theoretical training included courses on Czech Army organization and regulations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical warfare and poison gas (phosgene, diphosgene, mustard gas), and aircraft characteristics (descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions of units wooden training shells), chemical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. 4. Characteristic training courses and examined the participants personally. Prague had completed its antiaircraft defenses in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated noting accounts in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set Praha) dated 5 December 1952, was required to particulate in a special AAA training program for reservists. The classes were held at Prague 15 - Branik, na Krizku 1/cp. 77 every Wednesday from 1400 to 2000 hours. 25X 2. The instruction was largely devoted to antiaircraft defense. The instructors stressed that the purpose of the training was to prepare crows for the antiaircraft defense of Prague and that the participants must therefore become theroughly familiar with the operation of the AA guns. For the training period, three model 28-mm. guns and one model 20-mm. gun were employed. 3. The training was divided into three types: theoretical, practical, and political. a. The theoretical training included courses on Czach Army organization and regulations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical warfare and poison gas (phosgane, diphosgane, mustard gas), and aircraft characteristics (descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions (including small arms training), operation of the 8s and 20 mm. AA guns (but only using wooden training shells), chemical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. Lines by Six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenant colonels or colonels, from the General Staff at Frague, who looked in on training courses and examined the participants personally. Prague had completed its antiaircraft defenses in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated notites around.
2. The instruction was largely devoted to antiaircraft defense. The instructors stressed that the purpose of the training was to prepare crows for the antiaircraft defense of Frague and that the participants must therefore become thoroughly familiar with the operation of the Adguns. For the training period, three model 88-mm, guns and one model 20-mm, gun were employed. 3. The training was divided into three types: theoretical, practical, and political. a. The theoretical training included courses on Czach Army organization and regulations, type of Adguns, firing of guns, chemical warfare and poison gas (phosgene, diphosgene, musterd gas), and aircraft characteristics (descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions). b. Practical training included a basic training and tectics review, a weapons course (including small arms training), operation of the 88 and 20 mm. Adguns (but only using wooden training shells), chemical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. 4. Class was inspected four times by six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenant colonels or colonels, from the General Staff at Prague, who looked in on training courses and examined, the participants personally. 9. On one occasion, Prague had completed its enticiperated defenses in the summer of 1953, with Adguns having been cot up at decignated points around		Praha) dated 5 December 1952, was required to The classes were	perticipate in a special e held at Prague 15 - to 2000 hours.
stressed that the purpose of the training was to prepare crews for the anti- aircraft defense of Frague and that the participents must therefore become thoroughly familiar with the operation of the Ad guns. For the training period, three model 28-mm.guns and one model 20-mm.gun were employed. 3. The training was divided into three types: theoretical, practical, and political. a. The theoretical training included courses on Czech Army organization and regu- lations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical warfare and poison gas (phosgene, diphosgene, musterd gas), and aircraft characteristics (descrip- tions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical des- criptions). b. Practical training included a basic training and tactics review, a weapons course (including small arms training), operation of the 88 and 20 mm. AA guns (but only using wooden training shells), chemical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. 4. Class was inspected four times by six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenant colonals or colonals, from the General Staff at Frague; who looked in on training courses and examined, the participants personally. 7. On one occasion, Prague had completed its antiaircraft defenses in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated notute around	ſ
a. The theoretical training included courses on Czech Army organization and regulations, type of AM guns, firing of guns, chemical warfare and poison gas (phosgene, diphosgene, mustard gas), and aircraft characteristics (descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions). b. Practical training included a basic training and tactics review, a weapons course (including small arms training), operation of the 85 and 20 mm. AA guns (but only using wooden training shells), chemical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. 4. Class was inspected four times by six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenant colonels or colonels, from the General Staff at Prague; who looked in on training courses and examined the participants personally. Prague had completed its antiaircraft defenses in the summer of 1953, with AM guns having been set up at designated points around		stressed that the purpose of the training was to prepare aircraft defense of Prague and that the participants m	ere crows for the enti-
lations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical warfare and poison gas (phosgene, diphosgene, musterd gas), and aircraft characteristics (descriptions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristics, and technical descriptions). b. Practical training included a basic training and tactics review, a weapons course (including small arms training), operation of the 88 and 20 mm. AA guns (but only using wooden training shells), chemical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. times by six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenant colonels or colonels, from the General Staff at Prague; who looked in on training courses and examined the participants personally. Prague had completed its antiaircraft defenses in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated points around		three model 88-mm, gums and one model 20-mm, gum were en	ust therefore become For the training period.
course (including small arms training), operation of the 88 and 20 mm. AA guns (but only using wooden training shells), chemical warfare defense, use of optical and photographic devices, and aircraft identification. c. Political training involved mainly readings from articles in the newspapers or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. 4. Class was inspected four times by six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenant colonels or colonels, from the General Staff at Prague; who looked in on training courses and examined the participants personally. 5. On one occasion, Prague had completed its anticircraft defenses in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at decignated points around	3.	three model 88-nm. guns and one model 20-nm. gun were en	ust therefore become . For the training period, mployed.
cr propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of Stalin during World War II. class was inspected four times by six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenant colonels or colonels, from the General Staff at Prague, who looked in on training courses and examined, the participants personally. 5. On one occasion, Prague had completed its anticipants defenses in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated points around	3。	three model 88-mm. guns and one model 20-mm. gun were en the training was divided into three types: theoretical a. The theoretical training included courses on Czecl lations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical (phosgene, diphosgene, musterd gas), and aircraft tions of types of aircraft, identifying character:	ust therefore become . For the training period, mployed. al, practical, and political. th Army organization and regu- l warfare and poison gas characteristics (descriptimes by six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenant colonels or colonels, from the General Staff at Prague, who looked in on training courses and examined the participants personally. 5. On one occasion, Prague had completed its anticircraft defenses in the summer of 1953, with AM guns having been set up at decignated points around	3。	The training was divided into three types: theoretics a. The theoretical training included courses on Czecl lations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical (phosgene, diphosgene, musterd gas), and aircraft tions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristicitying. b. Practical training included a basic training and course (including small arms training), operation (but only using wooden training shells), chemical	ust therefore become For the training period, mployed. al, practical, and political. h Army organization and regu- l warfare and poison gas characteristics (descrip- istics, and technical des- tactics review, a weapons of the 88 and 20 mm. AA guns warfare defense. use of in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up at designated neights around	3.	The training was divided into three types: theoretical a. The theoretical training included courses on Czecl lations, type of AA gons, firing of gons, chemical (phosgene, diphosgene, musterd gas), and aircraft tions of types of aircraft, identifying characteristicitying. b. Practical training included a basic training and course (including small arms training), operation (but only using wooden training shells), chemical optical and photographic devices, and aircraft idea. c. Political training involved mainly readings from a	ust therefore become . For the training period, mployed. al, practical, and political. h Army organization and regu- l warfare and poison gas characteristics (descrip- istics, and technical des- tactics review, a weapons of the 8% and 20 mm. AA guns warfare defense, use of entification. erticles in the newspenses
		The training was divided into three types: theoretics a. The theoretical training included courses on Czecl lations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical (phosgene, diphosgene, musterd gas), and aircraft tions of types of aircraft, identifying characteric criptions). b. Practical training included a basic training and course (including small arms training), operation (but only using wooden training shells), chemical optical and photographic devices, and aircraft ide c. Political training involved mainly readings from a or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of	ust therefore become . For the training period, mployed. al, practical, and political. th Army organization and regu- l warfare and poison gas characteristics (descrip- istics, and technical des- tactics review, a weapons of the 8% and 20 mm. AA guns warfare defense, use of entification. articles in the newspapers Stalin during World War II. class was inspected four
11	(1 / 40	The training was divided into three types: theoretics a. The theoretical training included courses on Czecl lations, type of AA guns, firing of guns, chemical (phosgene, diphosgene, musterd gas), and aircraft tions of types of aircraft, identifying character: criptions). b. Practical training included a basic training and course (including small arms training), operation (but only using wooden training shells), chemical optical and photographic devices, and aircraft ide c. Political training involved mainly readings from a or propaganda pamphlets or from victory orders of times by six to eight high-ranking officers, lieutenan from the General Staff at Prague; who looked in on trai the participants personally. On one occasion, Prague had completed in the summer of 1953, with AA guns having been set up	ust therefore become For the training period, mployed. al, practical, and political. h Army organization and regu- l warfare and poison gas characteristics (descrip- istics, and technical des- tactics review, a weapons of the 85 and 20 mm. AA guns warfare defense, use of entification. articles in the newspapers Stalin during World War II. class was inspected four at colonels or colonels, ining courses and examined.

Approved For Release 2006/10/17 in Clar P.D.P80-00810A004200380003-0

CONFIDENTIAL

LE GEND

3-

- A Cateway for vehicles from the main road; two wings; small door for pedestrians in the left wing
- B Gateway for velicles from a side street
- C Exercise ground lighted by 4 reflectors on 4 masts, which are connected with isolated wires. Bulbs hang from the wires so as to light up the ground well if it is dark.
- I Sentry room with small veranda
- Main building in L shape, 10by 30 by 24 by 6 m. large, ground floor and let floor, brick building with tiled roof former restaurant "Na KRIZKO"

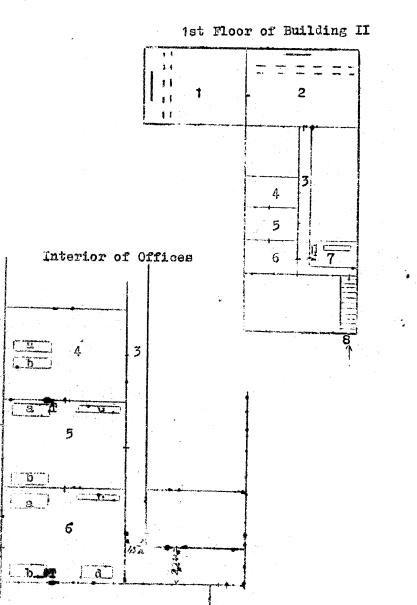

Rooms on the ground floor

25X1

- I Snack Bar
- 2 Luncheon Room
- 3 Dark Room
- & Class Room
- 5 Class Room
- 6 Corridor
- 7 WC -
- 8 Store Room
- 9 Corridor
- 10 Store Room
- Il Staircase leading to let floor
- Wooden barrack 10 by 8 m, over 5 m high, Sits on brickmount of 50 cm height
- IV Brick Garage for one automobile
- V Guard Shack

CONFIDENTIAL .

COMPIDENTIAL

CONFIDENTIAL

LEGEND

25X41A

ist Floor of Building III

- Class Room, 5 by 13 m, containing a black board, table and armchair for the instructor, several rows of chairs for the participants
- 2 Glass Room, 5 by 10 m, farnished as above
- 3 L-shaped Cofridor, 1.5 m. long and 2.2 m. wide
- 4 Office, 4 by 4 m. large, furnished with 2 desks a and b
- office, 4 by 4 m.large, furnished with 2 desks a and b,

 1 filing cabinet c, 1 talephone T, at desk a) a woman in

 NCO uniform is seated, allegedly the secretary of the CO
- office, 4 by 4 m. large, furnished with 3 desks a, b, and d, I filing cabinet and telephone T; at desk b) the 60 Lt Q/I is seated
- 7 Lavatory
- 8 Entrance from the staintage leading up from the court

CONFIDENTIAL