Congratulations are in order--especially for [redacted] I am delighted that [redacted] came through the experience so well but you are going to have to learn to be quicker with the telephone. My best wishes to all of you.

I gather from your letter that work is proceeding well at [redacted] This is consistent with what I hear from various people in OSR. The reports that I, myself, have seen indicate high-quality work--obviously, benefiting from your careful review--and show that solid evidence can indeed reconcile diverse opinions. As you realize, of course, that with the resolution of [redacted] issues, the introduction of readiness issues will make a clear settlement of differences less likely and your task somewhat more difficult. I expect the future to be, in this regard, a little frustrating for you.
