1. Brigade is not a training unit for Cubans

Observed pattern of activity over past several years does not include any substantial involvement in the training of Cuban ground forces

Pattern is very similar to that of combat units in USSR doing normal combat rehearsals

Organization, Activities, Facilities and Equipment are not tailored to training other people

Moreover, unlike any Soviet

MAAG elsewhere

2. Combat Unit has not been there since '62

No one questions a continuous

Soviet military presence since '62

It's clear in post missile crisis period:

Not enough equipment

Not enough facilities

Not enough training activity for the kind of combat unit we now see

Mission and structure changed at least a second time since '62

When reached present form unclear

At least mid '70s

No one questions that it changed its mission and activities when missiles left island

3. Good intelligence performance brought this out

Not talking about detecting a Sov mil presence

Talking about discerning its purpose - most difficult part of intell

Have done so with confidence

Know composition - Bgde

" organization - 4 Bn

" rank structure - Col

" location - 2 sites

" size - @ 2600

" equipment - 40 tanks,

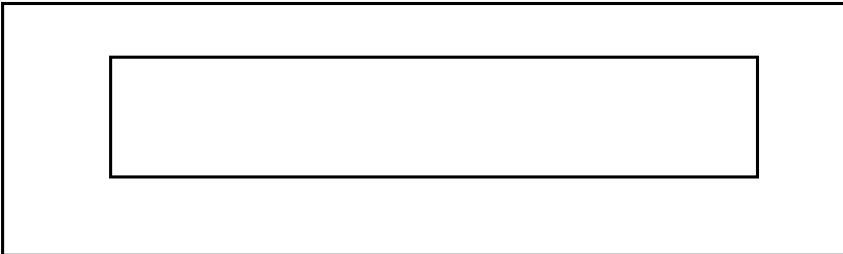

- 60 APC's

" training pattern - similar Sov combat units in USSR

" no observable connections with Cuban military

If it looks like a duck, ...
