The Honorable James J. ^{Lead}Rosday
Chief, United States Secret Service
Department of the Treasury
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Jim:

Following up on our telephone conversation of this afternoon, I send you herewith my most recent memorandum to three of my Deputies on the subject, "The CIA Role in Support of Presidential Trips Abroad." This is an updating of a memorandum I put out on 8 June 1962, and is designed to tell everybody in the Agency what their responsibilities are and to whom. You will of course understand that while our responsibilities to the Secret Service are intimate and compelling as covered in paragraph II D of the attached, we also have responsibilities for pure intelligence aspects and Presidential briefings which must be covered in detail. If you have any suggestions as to where we might improve our coverage, I would be delighted to have them.

This letter also confirms my telephonic invitation to you and Mr. Campion to have lunch with Lyman Kirkpatrick and me at 12:30 on Friday, 12 April, out here at the pickle factory.

Faithfully yours,

1/1 Pat
