In a number of instances in recent months, departments and agencies have engaged in direct negotiations with opposite numbers in Canada on matters which have wound up on the President's desk. All aspects of Canadian-American relations are of intense interest and concern to the President himself, and nearly all problems have meaning and impact which go beyond the concern of a single department or agency. For this reason, the President desires that the White House be fully informed of all significant negotiation or plans for negotiation with the Government of Canada, and for this purpose he has designated William H. Brubeck as staff officer for Canadian affairs here. It will be appreciated if those having significant Canadian business will be in touch with Mr. Brubeck as a matter of course.
