Thank you for your recent letter inquiring about the possibilities for your service with this Agency. I have delayed replying in order to look into any immediate prospects for you here.

Your resume has been reviewed by appropriate officers on our staff but there appears to be no definite position which we could offer to you at this time. We are always interested in men with a background such as yours, however, and would like to talk with you further. If you should have occasion to visit Washington on other business at any time in the near future, I hope you will let me know so that appropriate interviews can be scheduled for you. If something specific should develop in the meantime, we shall of course let you know and arrange definite meetings with you at an earlier time.

Thank you again for writing to us.

Sincerely,

SIGNED
