14 JAN 1960

Many thanks for your New Year's greetings. I am pleased to hear that your health has returned. Your note leaves no doubt that whatever physical abuse you have had to bear, your spirit has not flagged.

It would indeed be pleasant if our respective travels this coming year would offer an opportunity for a leisurely talk.

Clover joins me in wishing you a prosperous New Year.

Sincerely,

Dear Allen :

This year shall not end without sending you a few words, at least, telling you how often during so many sad and stormy days my thoughts have been with you. I am sure, all these dramatic changes will have hammered your energy and fighting mood only stronger.

Grateful about my personal recovery, I am determined to invest the coming year even politically with as much optimism as thinkable. I am convinced that all the admirable, if risky, efforts of President Eisenhower eventually will work out successfully.

Now, that I have not seen you for more than three years I trust, somehow and somewhere, 1960 will offer me a chance of meeting you again. I am longing for a long and good talk to you.

In the meantime, Mappy New Year to Clover and you !

Always yours
