with a cargo of timber.

50X1-HUM

2. The vessel was inspected on arrival and in her general lay out, is like any normal merchant ship.

3. In the Radio Room were four large consoles which could not be identified, one set 'Nastroika' Volno K 1, and one large tape recorder with double tape. There were 6 x 15 ft whip aerials, three either side of the bridge, normal wire from mainmast to funnel, and a dipole on the mainmast. (At 1405 the radio operator was receiving a morse type message and recording it on a signal pad).

50X1-HUM

4. On the bridge deck there are five constructions of steel angle girder which appear to be intended for use as mountings for equipment. They measure as follows:

3 x 2' square x 2½' high

2 x 2' square x 6' high

5. Photographs were taken with a camera using a 3.75 cm lens, and are stereo pairs.
