1. New "Stakhanovist" schools have been operating in sixty-four regions of the Caucasus, since 1 Mar 54. Tested Communists, who have finished their studies in technical schools, and who have passed a special "stage" in the political courses, have been sent down to start the schools. They are supposed to provide a "nucleus".
2. The new schools are meant to show young workmen how to economize time and materials, how to use machines, and how to achieve both quality and quantity in production. Plans are now being made in twenty-six different factories (chemicals, food products, textiles and others) for arrangements under which these student workers can spend a period of apprenticeship and application, after their courses of study, or even while the courses are in progress.
3. Almost 20,000 young workers will thus be added as assistants to workmen now employed, who thus far have failed to achieve the desired norm.
