most of the youths joined this organization extuer because of the alleged advantages to be derived therefrom or because pressure was exerted by teachers or other superiors.

only about five per cent of those who join do so voluntarily.

All inductees who were ZMP members in civilian life were automatically enrolled into this organization in the Army. About 55 of the 77 boys in my Army unit were ZMP members.

Living conditions in postwar Poland were best during 1945, 1946, and 1947. During those years food and clothing were plentiful and relatively cheap. In 1948 and early 1949 one began to notice some deterioration of the market. It was not until late 1949, when ration cards were introduced, that the situation with respect to availability of consumer goods became very bad. Food and clothing were becoming scarce; prices began to skyrocket.

Today, with the state in control of practically all business and enterprise, the situation is intolerable.
