

It is an aid in the identification of employees possessing particular combinations of experience and skills needed for special staffing requirements, provides a basis for managerial review and consideration of on-board personnel to fill new requirements and for assignment to positions offering career development opportunities. It has the further advantage of reducing the cost and delay associated with external recruitment.

ILLEGIB