NO. _____ - THE FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE PROGRAM

(This report states the most significant changes which have occurred during the period 30 June - 31 December 1953; it supplements the full report submitted 3 August 1953 as No. 9 in NSC-161.)

I. COORDINATION

1. When the IAC agencies concurred in the last report submitted, they pointed out that the effects of budget cuts then recently imposed on intelligence activities could not be assessed at that time. Since then, the agencies individually have experienced the effects of budget reductions and now conclude that these have been possible of assimilation by shifting assets or curtailing peripheral activities. The only serious effects have been felt in the collection activities of the Foreign Service and even these are being met, at least partially, by alternative activities.

2. Collectively, the agencies, at the request of the Bureau of the Budget, have developed a suggested listing of categories of intelligence activities as an aid to the Bureau in its proposed budgetary analysis of intelligence programs. It is hoped that this analysis will, among other results, aid the agencies in their continuing appraisal of the costs of the foreign intelligence program.

3. Two Director of Central Intelligence Directives were issued, and one revised, with the concurrence of the IAC, during this period. DCID 7/1 establishes procedures for insuring that all non-governmental individuals offering foreign intelligence information are referred to CIA for exploitation in accordance with NSCID 7. DCID 3/5 refines procedures for the production of national intelligence estimates.

II. NATIONAL ESTIMATES

1. During the period of this report the IAC approved 19 national estimates ( 8 special estimates and 11 NIE's ).

2. At the request of the IAC, the Board of National Estimates, CIA, has undertaken a review of DCID's 4/1 and 4/2, issued under NSCID-4, on national intelligence objectives.

III. POLITICAL, SOCIAL AND CULTURAL INTELLIGENCE

The quality of analysis by the staffs producing political, sociological, and cultural intelligence has been fully maintained and even improved. In part, the pressure of demands on reduced staffs has been met by a stepping-up of the long-term trend toward the merging of economic, political, and sociological analysis in dealing with individual intelligence problems.

V. ECONOMIC INTELLIGENCE

1. The recent revisions of economic policy and plans in the Soviet Bloc countries have led to a temporary increase in the flow of Soviet and Satellite data on production, trade, and consumption. Although many of these data continue to be stated in terms of percentage change from undefined bases, a considerable amount was reported in absolute terms of production, trade, and consumption. These new data should permit improved estimates on rates of development and trends in particular sectors of the Bloc economies.

2. Intelligence needed for enforcement of economic defense measures has been improved during the last six months by the establishment of machinery to (a) provide rapid collation and analysis of intelligence on illegal transactions with the Soviet Bloc, (b) speed the dissemination of intelligence to appropriate action agencies, and (c) improve the receipt of information on priority requests to the field.
