1. The "Sergio Pula" Section of the Rome Federation of the Italian Communist Party (Quarticiolo Quarter) is composed of 80 men and 16 women. The secretary of the section is Enrico Donati and the President is Paolo Lugasteri who often comes to Rome to distribute arms.
2. The armament of the Section at present consists of: 4 Thompson sub-machine guns, 4 German machine pistols, 6 cases of hand grenades, and 1 mortar. In addition, each member has a pistol and a rifle. Arms not carried by the individuals are stored in a cave east of the Quarticiolo and south of the Via Prenestrina.
3. The Movement has a clandestine printing press located in the Secretary's house located in loft 1, stairway Q, Apartment 13, Quarticiolo. In addition the section possesses two w/t sets, 3 field telephones (one of which is operating between the section headquarters and the Secretary's house, the other two are hidden in the cave mentioned above).
4. On Sunday, 17 March 1947, a meeting was held at which the Secretary stated that during the next elections the members of the Section would remain on the premises armed. At the end of the meeting the members were given propaganda pamphlets to distribute.
5. The names of the male members are:

7. The Section is in part financed from funds received from the Federation Hqs, and mostly from black market deals. For instance, the section came into possession of 5500 liters of gasoline which the Germans left behind in a warehouse managed by a certain INNOCENTI. A large quantity of the gasoline has already been sold on the black market and the remaining 2000 liters are now consigned to Comrade FIORI. It is alleged that the arms for the section are bought in Piazza Dante.
