1. The following instructions to cells of the Communist Party of Chile for the week of 21 February to 1 March 1949 were transmitted orally in clandestine meetings.
 - a. No Communist militant should risk exposing himself to arrest with propaganda or pamphlets with names and addresses on his person. All papers of the Party must be destroyed or gotten rid of.
 - b. If any militant has in his possession lists, stubs, or documents of an illegal nature, they must be destroyed immediately. Illegal documents are an exception copies of speeches made by Communist deputies.
 - c. All militants should be present at the blitz meetings which were organized in apparently extemporaneous fashion on street corners. In the event that Party members should be arrested by the police, the central office of the Frente Nacional Democratico or the responsible officer of the Committee of Solidarity must be advised immediately.
 - d. Collection of funds should continue, and a daily account must be given to the person in charge of communal finances. The financial secretary of the cells must try to obtain funds from all militants, and cooperate with the financial secretary of the commune to set a list of "possibilities", that is, those sympathizers who are disposed to remit certain sums of money periodically. The sale of bonds is one of the immediate assignments which must be undertaken. The cells can obtain the bonds from the Secretariats of the FND.
 - e. Women's organizations must be established. Each cell must have at least one woman in charge of women's affairs to complete the assignments which the Communist Party directorate recommends.
2. The Political Commission of the Party has recommended to its Studies Commission the preparation of a report regarding the "religious struggle in Chile", to be used to counteract adverse publicity surrounding the verdict passed on Cardinal Mindszenty. The Studies Commission was also instructed to prepare a brief history of the economic aid of the United States to the Latin American republics. This study will be assigned to the cells for consideration, and will probably be published later in pamphlet form.
