1. Since the summer of 1945, the Soviets, assisted by German specialists [ ] have been concentrating on their polar regions. To guarantee smooth and concentrated work in this field, the Soviets organized a division for polar regions in the field of military research (militärische Forschungsarbeit), which has been combined with Glavsevmorput (Chief Administration of Northern Sea Routes). The scope of this new division, which functions under the designation "SMP 10/130", includes:
- a. Scientific research (Wissenschaftliche Forschung)
  - b. Industrial utilization (Industrielle Nutzbarmachung)
  - c. Development of military potentialities (Verwendungsmöglichkeit)
  - d. Technical transport development (Verkehrstechnische Ausbaung)
2. At the present time, one of the principle tasks of SMP 10/130 is a project to "broaden threefold" ** the route from Arkhangelsk, running south of the island of Novaya Zemlya, through the Kara Sea, then south of the Severnaya Zemlya island group, on through the Novo Sibirskiye island group and the Bering Strait to Vladivostok. This work is being controlled by a special group of the Soviet Air Force.
3. Glavsevmorput has received the following assignment from the civilian sector:
- a. Cultivation (zuchten) of certain kinds of grains which are frost-resistant (frostfreies) and can be grown in the polar regions.

**It is not certain what [ ] the term "broaden threefold". The original German "der Verbreiterung auf das dreifache der Durchfahrtsstrasse" is as equivocal as the English.

Comments:

*SMP is probably the Russian abbreviation for Northern Sea Routes. Since Glavsevmorput is the chief administration, it is likely that the preceding sentence should read, "....a division for military research in the polar regions which is subordinate to Glavsevmorput."

****This would be near Lake Nei-To on the Yamal Peninsula.

****This would be in the Pyasinaki Bay area.

*****Probably on the northern coast of the peninsula, since a point near 110°E on the southeastern coast would be illogically close to the station defined in subparagraph "1".

*****On the basis of the longitude given, this probably should read, "On Koteln Island in the Novo Sibirskiye Islands...."

*****On the basis of the longitude given, Novaya Sibir Island is meant. This is the easternmost of the large islands but not the farthest east of the whole group.

Several of the places mentioned in this report have been reported before as the sites of Arctic research stations, airfields operated by Glavsevmorput, sea traffic stations, etc. [ ]
