1. Between May and September 1948 an exploratory group consisting mostly of Russians was organized to examine areas for uranium deposits. Exploration had already been started at the end of 1947 and early in 1948 by some members of this group.
2. The areas explored by this group included Pribram and the Giant Mountains. Samples of water and air as well as of the ore were collected and carefully analyzed in the main laboratory at Jachymov, after which time they were forwarded to the USSR. Also sent to the USSR were bottled samples of radioactive alpha, beta and gamma rays.
