1. A copy of the Indonesian language Communist publication Tenaga for 25 October 1950 has been received by the CIA library and is available upon request.
2. This publication strongly supports the Sarekat Buruh Perkebunan Republik Indonesia (SARBUPRI).
3. The Five Principles of the Indonesian Nation are bitterly caricatured in cartoons on page 25. The captions of these cartoons are:
 1. Religion: There is no freedom of worship. Why? Although you want to go to pray, you have no clothes to wear. Dressed like this, no worship is legal.
 2. Nationality: The people who struggled for the establishment of the Red and White flag do not reap the harvest of their toil, but those who formerly hesitated now support the country, they are the well-to-do people.
 3. Humanity: Pretentiously, he gives alms to the beggar, but in truth he is the very cause of the existence of beggars. Just ask the fat man to abolish pauperism. Then he will shrug his shoulders.
 4. Democracy: Democracy does not mean much of anything. Those who have the right of freedom of speech are the bureaucrats. The mouths of the people are shut up by military regulations, emergency regulations and other measures.
 5. Social Justice: Social justice means that the fat will remain so forever, and the thin will remain thin just as long. Those who eat things out of bottles and tins will go on eating them, and those who eat tree-leaves and kernels will continue to do so.
