On about 2 February, it was believed in Chinese Communist and North Korean officer circles that the withdrawal of Chinese Communist and North Korean troops was tactically planned. Communist forces are expected to fall back to the 38th Parallel if pushed, then wait for replacements, planes, tanks, and materiel which is stockpiled north of the Yalu River. An all-out counterattack is expected at an unspecified time after the lunar New Year. This is referred to as the third phase of the war.
