1. The Tesla plant at Prague XVI - Hlubocepy, Perkatov, formerly known as Vinopalove Brothers, produces high frequency selenium rectifiers, aluminum plates with brass inserts, aluminum cooling plates and mica insulating inserts. The high frequency rectifiers, 45 cm x 30 cm x 40 cm in size, are used by the Army Signal Service and telephone central offices. The base of the rectifier is a plate on which are two (condensers ?) consisting of a core with primary and secondary windings of enamelled copper wire. The frame of a coil is made of pertinax. After the wire is wound on the coil, the unit is dipped into a liquid insulating material. Two or three resistors and two or three blocks (sic) are also mounted on the base plate, and the unit is enclosed in a cast cover.
2. The Hlubocepy plant consists of a workshop, a darkroom for developing selenium plates, testing laboratories, and an assembly shop. The plant machinery is of German origin and is worn. There are 47 employees who work on a piece-work basis for one shift per day. The plant director is Konicek; production manager is Jiran, and chairman of the Workers' Council is Melichar.
